1. COURSE CONTENT

The course "International Intellectual Property Law" is aimed at studying the legal norms and institutions governing the field of intellectual property, as well as the general principles of legal regulation in the protection of the results of intellectual activity. The course also examines the main trends and patterns in the development of civil legislation regulating intellectual property objects and the rules for their protection in the Republic of Uzbekistan. The significance of international intellectual property law lies in the fact that considerable attention is paid to the comprehensive protection of intellectual property objects, which serve as a form of private property.

The main objectives of the course are:

- to study key legal documents of the legislation on intellectual property;
- to become familiar with the history and modern trends of international intellectual property law;
- to develop the ability to make independent decisions based on the legislation of the Republic of Uzbekistan and foreign countries;
- to cultivate the skills of examining different areas of intellectual property law from a comparative perspective.

The course will enable master's students to correctly interpret court decisions, analyze them, and form their own well-reasoned conclusions.

2. PREREQUISITES

No prerequisites are required for this course.

3. COURSE OBJECTIVE

The main goal of the course is to study the key legal instruments of international intellectual property law, to become familiar with the development of international intellectual property law and its current trends, to acquire the ability to make independent decisions based on the legislation of the Republic of Uzbekistan, and to learn how to approach various areas of international intellectual property law from a comparative perspective, among other objectives.

4. LEARNING OUTCOMES

Upon successful completion of this course, master's students will acquire the following knowledge and skills:

- To understand the main concepts of international intellectual property law, correctly identify the applicable legal norms for addressing specific issues, and accurately use legal terminology;
- To independently prepare written recommendations outlining possible solutions to problems in international intellectual property law;
- To analyze primary and secondary sources of international intellectual property law, as well as scholarly literature studied within the course;
- To independently draft legal documents, including procedural documents and intellectual property agreements;

- To independently apply the acquired knowledge, skills, and competencies to simulated or real-life situations;
- To provide competent legal advice through an informed evaluation of the situation concerning a given problem.

5. INDEPENDENT STUDY AND SELF-DIRECTED WORK

I. Independent work is conducted with the aim of deepening master's students' knowledge of the subject and involves individual study of the main and supplementary literature necessary for completing independent assignments based on pre-selected specialized sources.

II. The main requirements for this form of independent work for master's students are as follows:

1. Completion of assignments based on the literature provided for independent study;
2. Assessment criteria include: independence, creativity (analytical approach, idea generation, novelty in problem formulation, attention to problem-solving), and the justification of proposed solutions;
3. Style and presentation (overall literacy, clarity, and readability of the text);
4. Essay requirements: length – 1,200 words ($\pm 10\%$); font – Times New Roman; line spacing – 1.5; font size – 14;
5. Logical sequence and substantiation of the arguments presented.

III. Each master's student must complete five independent assignments in the form of individual tasks by the specified deadlines (case study solutions on previously covered topics, document templates, comparative analyses).

Master's students are required to submit all assignments on time. Missed assignments cannot be resubmitted.

1. Course Description

The "Corporate Law" course provides master's students with in-depth knowledge of the legal regulation of corporate entities, their formation, governance, and operation in both national and international contexts. The course examines the legal nature of corporations, corporate personality, and the rights and obligations of shareholders, directors, and other stakeholders.

It covers key aspects such as corporate governance, fiduciary duties, shareholder rights, corporate finance, mergers and acquisitions, and corporate restructuring. The course also explores comparative approaches to corporate regulation and contemporary issues in corporate law. Special attention is given to developing analytical and practical skills in applying corporate law in real-life situations, drafting corporate documents, and resolving corporate disputes. As a 6-credit course, it requires intensive study, active participation, and substantial independent work.

2. Course Prerequisites

No formal prerequisites are required. However, prior knowledge of civil law, business law, and contract law is highly recommended.

3. Course Objectives

The course aims to:

- Provide comprehensive knowledge of the concept and legal framework of corporate law;
- Explain the formation, registration, and dissolution of corporate entities;
- Develop understanding of corporate governance mechanisms;
- Analyze the rights and duties of shareholders, directors, and executives;
- Introduce legal aspects of corporate finance and capital structure;
- Provide knowledge on mergers, acquisitions, and corporate restructuring;
- Develop skills in drafting corporate documents (charters, shareholder agreements, resolutions);
- Enhance students' ability to resolve corporate disputes and analyze case law;
- Prepare students for professional legal practice in corporate and business law.

4. Learning Outcomes

Upon successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

- Understand the concept, sources, and principles of corporate law;
- Identify different types of corporate entities and their legal features;
- Analyze corporate governance structures and mechanisms;
- Evaluate the rights and obligations of shareholders and directors;
- Apply legal rules to issues of corporate finance and transactions;
- Draft corporate legal documents and internal regulations;
- Analyze mergers, acquisitions, and restructuring processes;
- Resolve corporate disputes using legal reasoning;
- Critically assess corporate legislation and propose improvements.

5. Independent Study and Assignments

I. Independent Study

Independent study is designed to deepen students' knowledge and develop research and analytical skills. Given that the course carries 6 credits, students are expected to devote substantial time to independent learning.

Students are required to:

1. Prepare a research/project paper on a selected topic in corporate law;
2. Use comparative and analytical approaches;
3. Provide well-grounded legal arguments and practical recommendations;
4. Follow academic writing standards (clarity, structure, referencing);
5. Present their research findings in class.

II. Submission Requirements

- The project paper must be submitted within the установлен deadline;
- Late submissions are not accepted;
- Evaluation criteria include originality, analytical depth, practical relevance, and quality of presentation.
